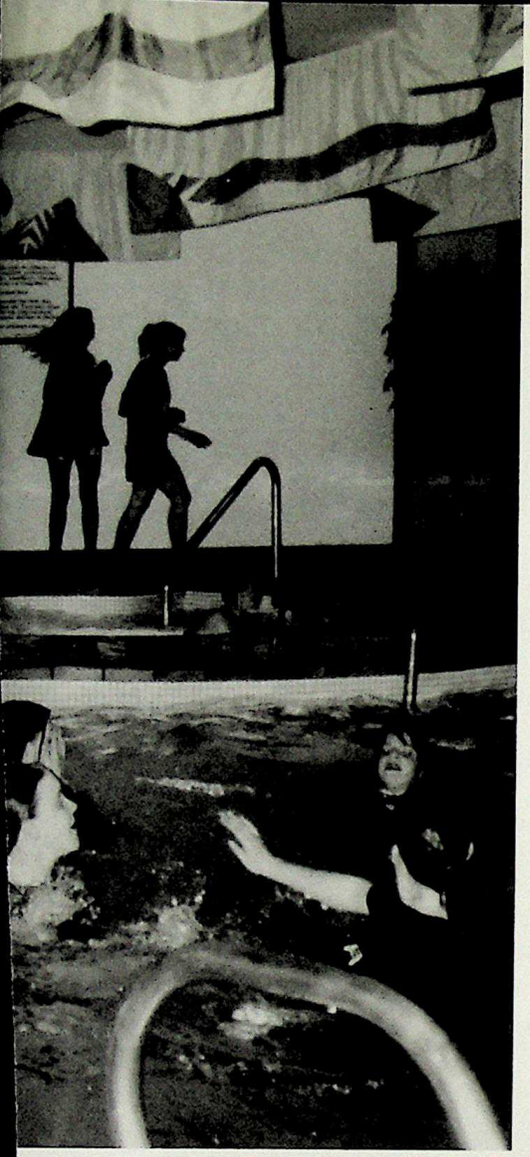
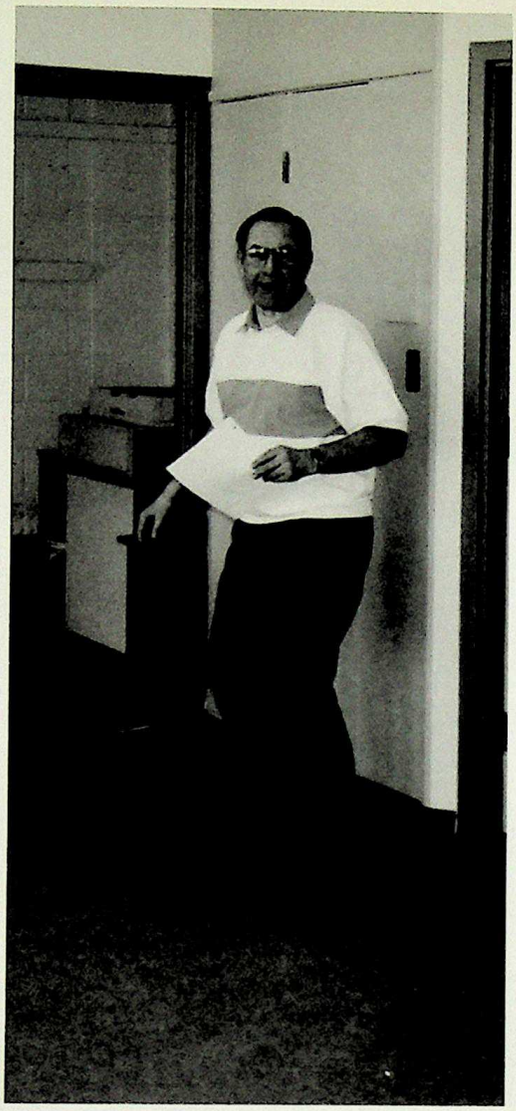
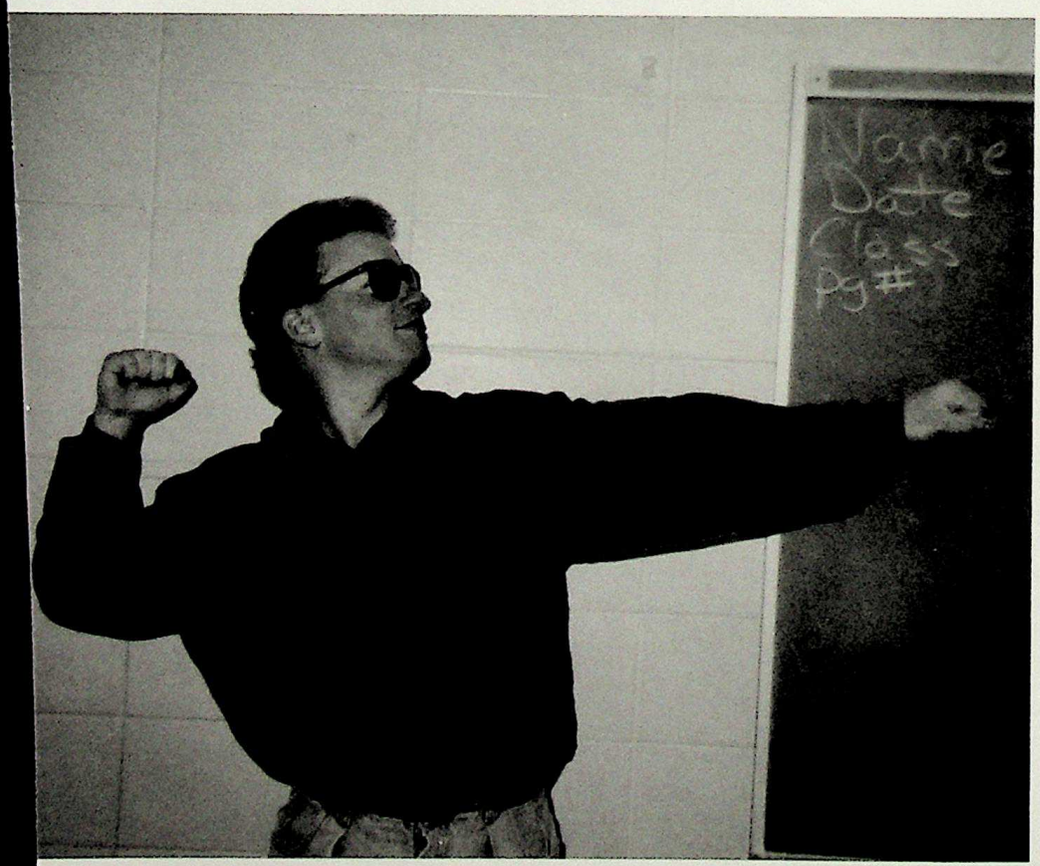
Ahh! Please don't bite me! Actually, Trevor Tessier isn't nervous at all about holding Ms. Caley's iguana, Mango. Mango likes to participate in a daily fitness routine which includes chin ups in his little cage.





Ha! Caught you in the act! Mr. Michelsen is caught sneaking test answers from the office. Now why would he need test answers? Hmm . . .

My you look young Mrs. Garen! Rodney Gartke sits pretty in his hallowe'en costume, pretending to be a secretary. He stops his job only for a moment, to take a quick coffee break.



You're doing a great job! Mrs. Vandale has substituted for Mr. Breda since February, because his unfortunate illness has prevented him from completing the rest of the year. Get well soon Mr. Breda!

90210 star comes to Hardisty! Steve Sanders (A.K.A. Mr. Anderson) takes time off from his busy Beverly Hills schedule to student teach science. Mr. Anderson is getting married in August, but to who? Celeste or Kelly?

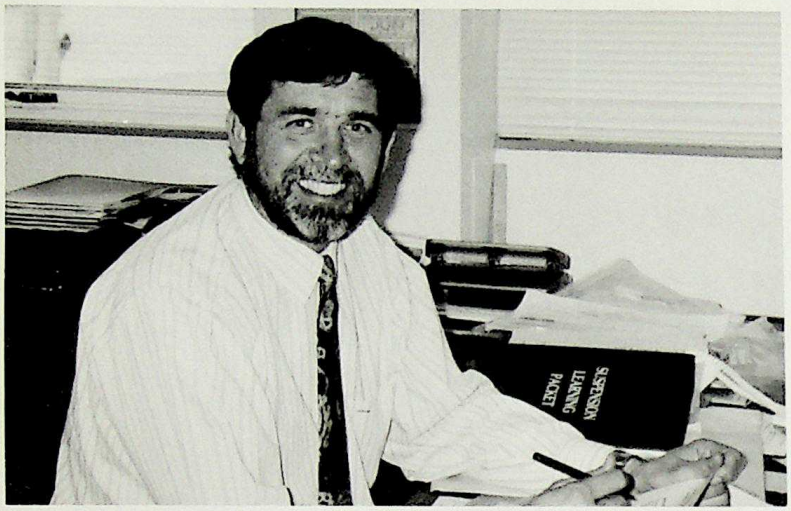
Caterpillars to Butterflies



Principal's Message

Every student is capable of a level of success. At Hardisty we have provided you an opportunity to think, to plan, to act in a responsible manner and to become a valuable member of your school community. On the way to your personal success, we have seen laughter, anger and tears, and have watched you grow and mature as individuals. The fluffy caterpillars are becoming beautiful butterflies!

I hope that you grow wiser in your years and that your love of learning continues. Be well.

Student Life at Hardisty

Many Great Memories

Lenore Boettcher grins as she wins the best dressed greaser girl in the school.

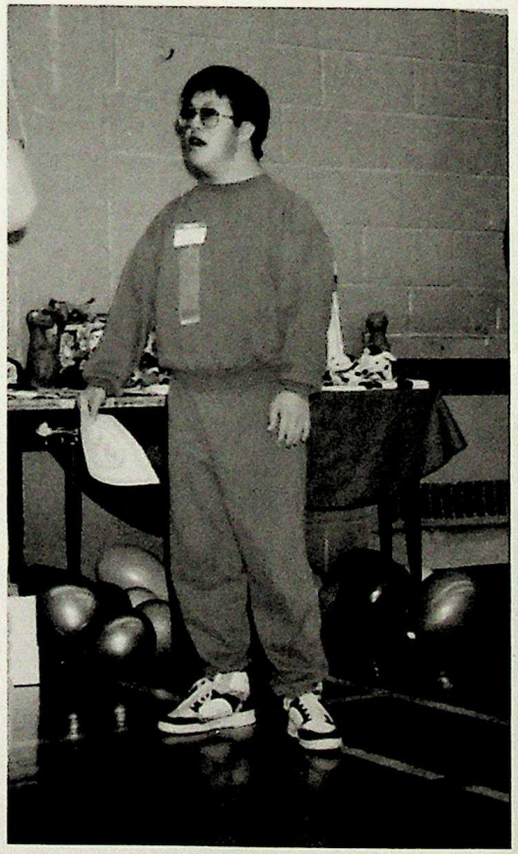
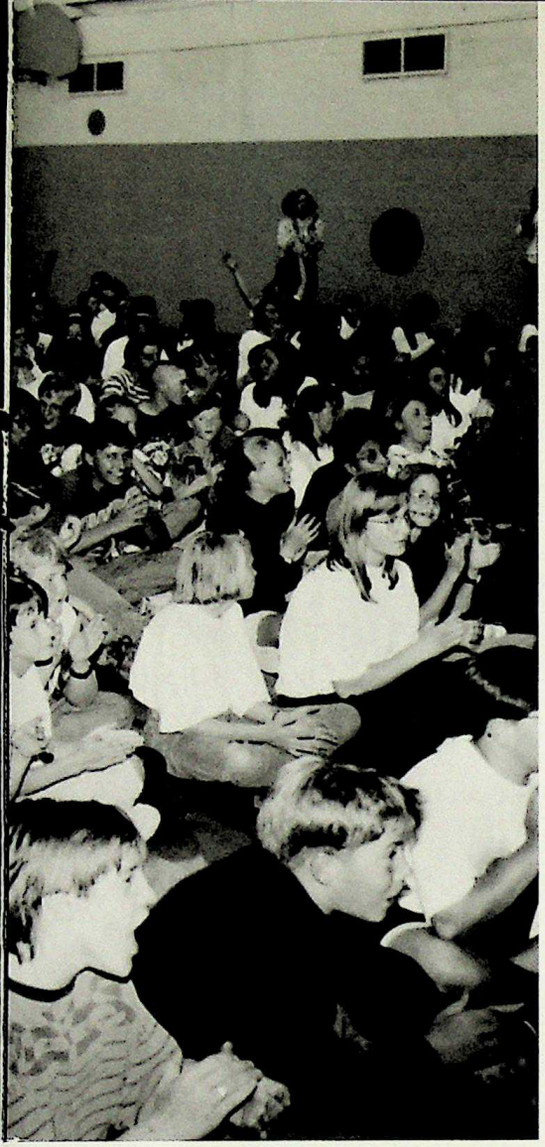
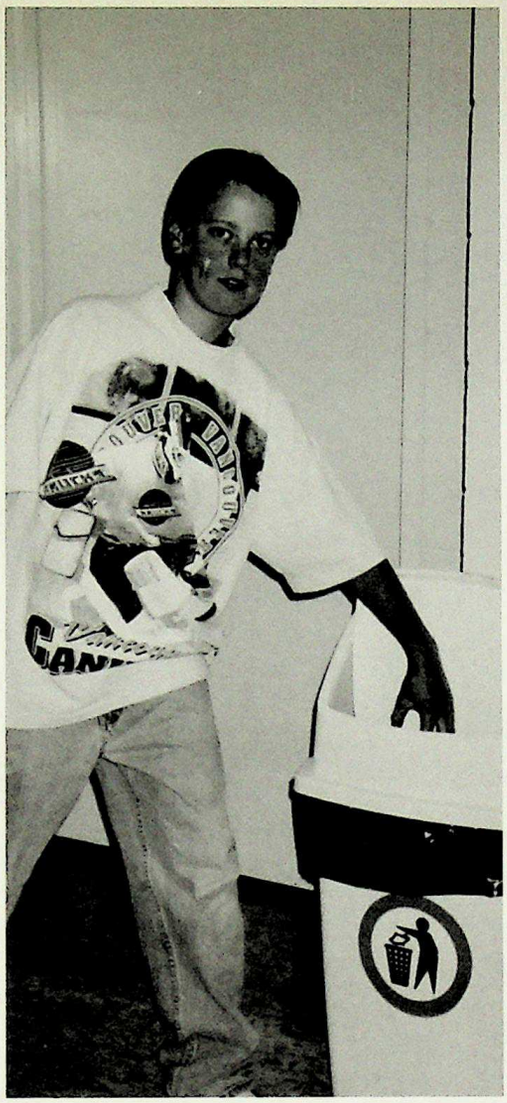
Nice shades April! Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. Fraser give some last minute instructions to meet in front of the bus after skiing. The skiers went to Lake Louise and Sunshine.



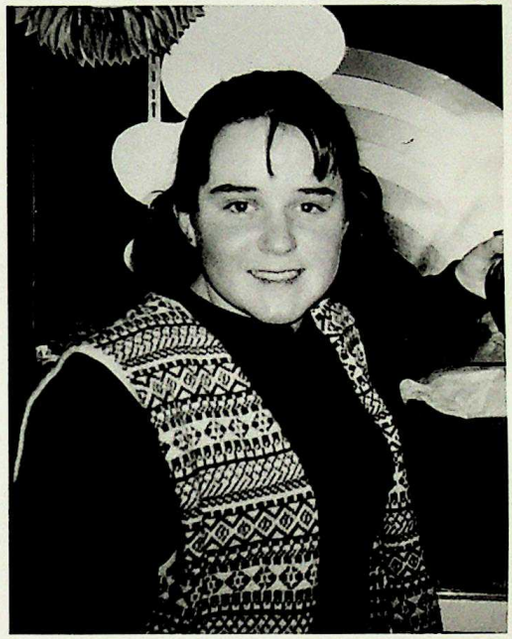
Yes, I won! Craig Mah celebrates after the tri-school olympiad by picking out a prize from the prize table.





Give a hoot, don't pollute! Ken Sales does his part to help keep Hardisty clean. We'd like to thank everybody who picked up litter and used the proper receptacles . .

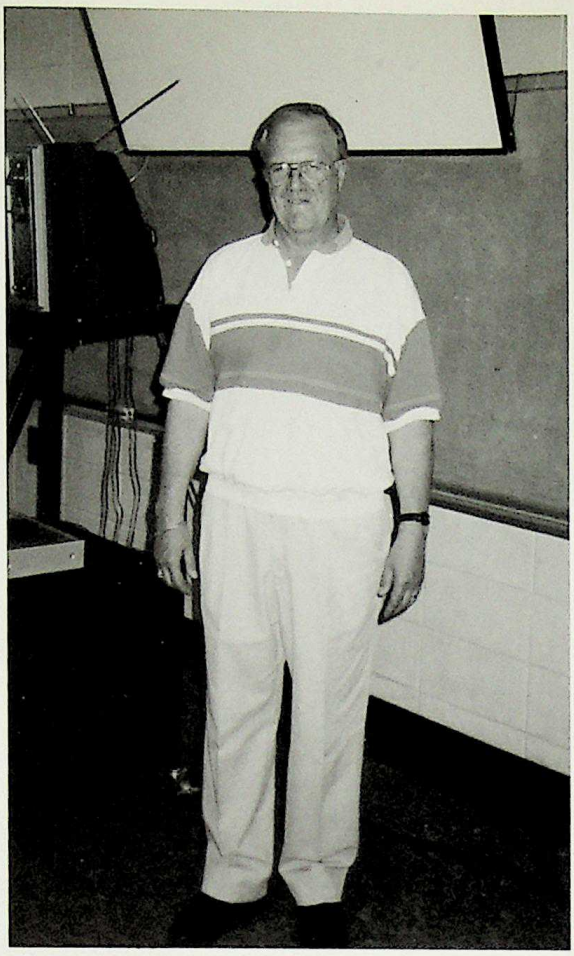
It's the luck of the Irish! Julie Manolescu won this pot of gold coins which she shared with Mr. Kindrat. This was one of many guessing contests that Hardisty had this year.



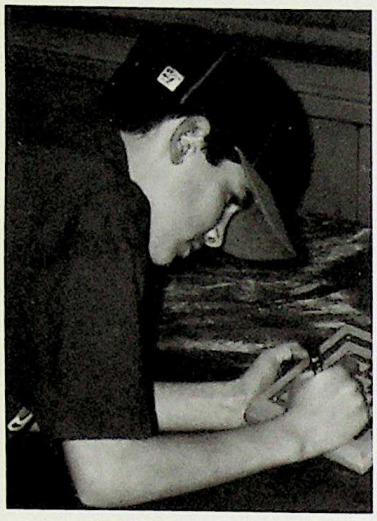
Here are some pumpkin carving cuties! Zosia Gonera, Amy Krowko, Terra Paradis and Melanie Doherty strike a pose behind the pumpkin that they carved for the contest between homerooms.

There is enough food here for a small army! Jason Lapointe, Robert MacGregor and Angela Hyde stand with the food collected by Hardisty students during our annual food drive.

Bye bye, Hardisty Jr. High! Our beloved Mr. Throndson is retiring after 32 years of teaching. Not only will he be missed, but his songs will also be missed by everyone! Maybe he should make a tape with all his songs!



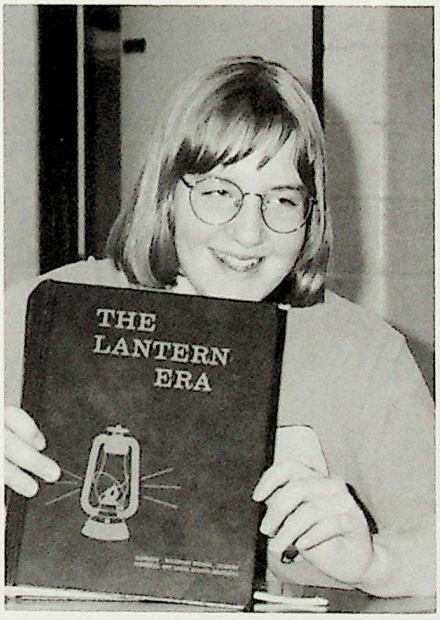
Easy does it! Putting the finishing touches on an industrial arts project with a felt marker, Javan Avent hopes he'll get top marks for it.



Yum! Yum! John Harkins is all smiles after he finished his snack on the Multicultural day in Mrs. Woodbury's social studies class.

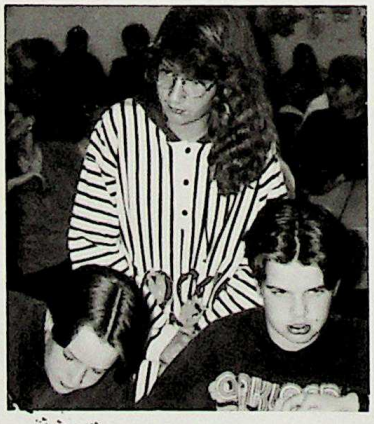
Miss school, miss out! After listening to a stimulating speech, Hardave Riar, Tasha Davis and Roulette Edwards decide to stay in school. The speaker was Randy Ambroise of the Edmonton Eskimos.

Hey Robin! Pass the ball! Robin Ings gets ready to pass the ball to Tamsin Shute during a wheel chair basketball game against the ''Chalkdusters''. The Northern Lights Society lent the chairs to Hardisty for a week, so the students could realize what it is like to be in a wheelchair.

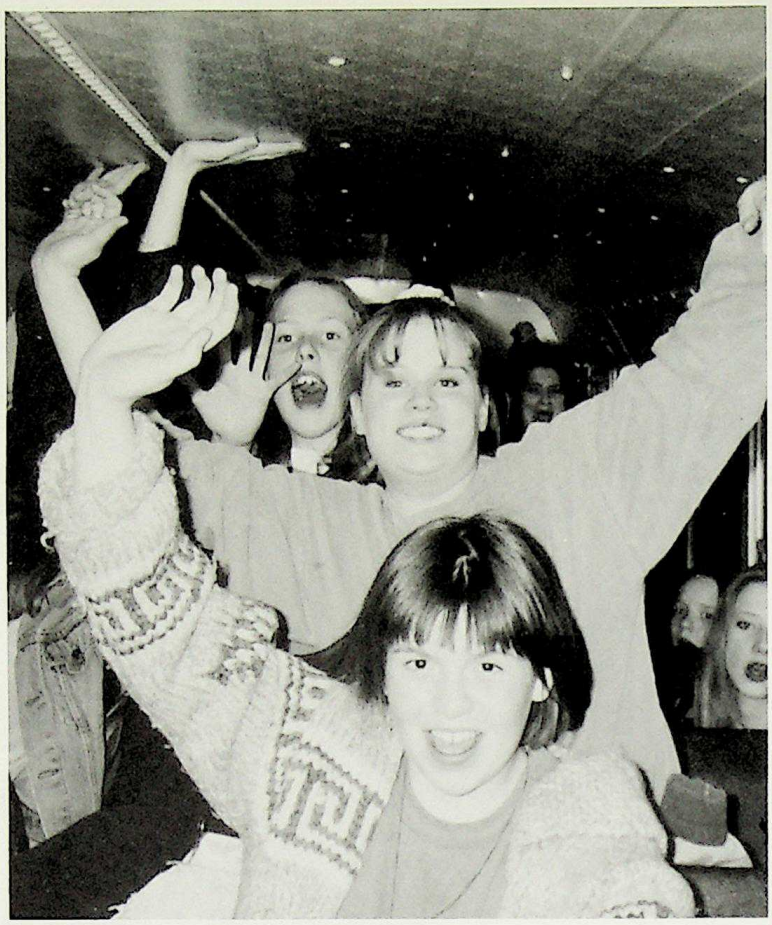


It's a great book, really! Anna Dorward shows off her book in Mrs. Woodbury's grade seven social studies class. This was on the Multicultural day where the students shared things from different cultures.

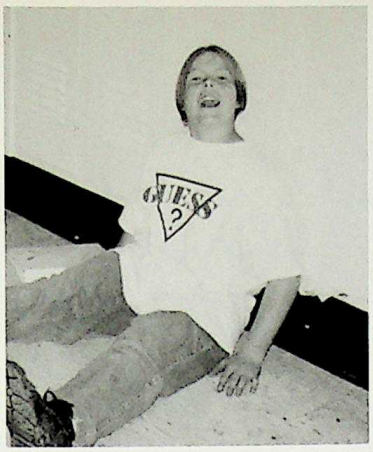
Would you sign my book? At the anthology signing, Hally Birmingham asks cousin, Jason Welch, and friend, Terry Cavanagh, to sign her copy of the anthology.



You mean it's my turn?! Robin Maynard receives a ball from Stephanie Harroun and a shirt from Kavita Singh, at Hardisty's Tri-School Olympiad. Special needs students from Hardisty, Killarney and Britannia participated in the activities.

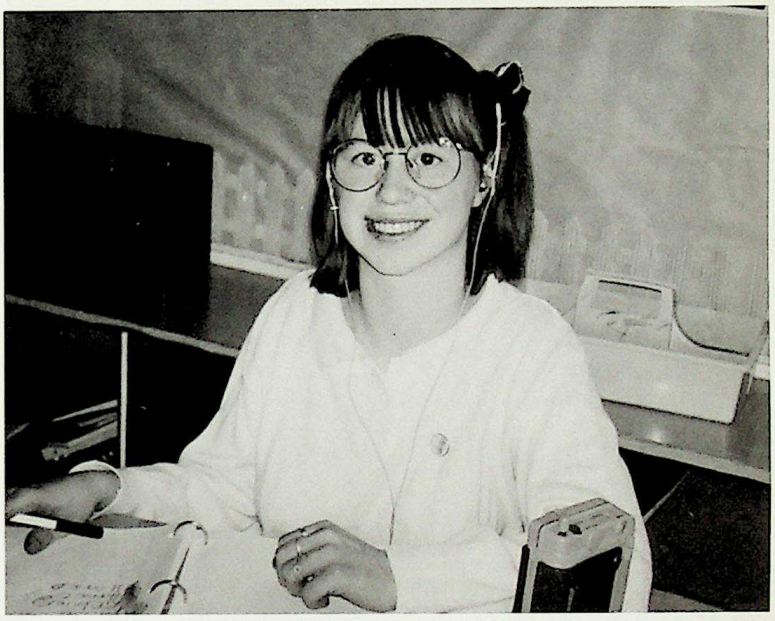


Three cheers for Hardisty! Kim Williams, Satya Griesheimer, and Morgan Davies act crazy on their way to cheer on the boys basketball team, at their final game. The team was coached by Mr. Bodnar.

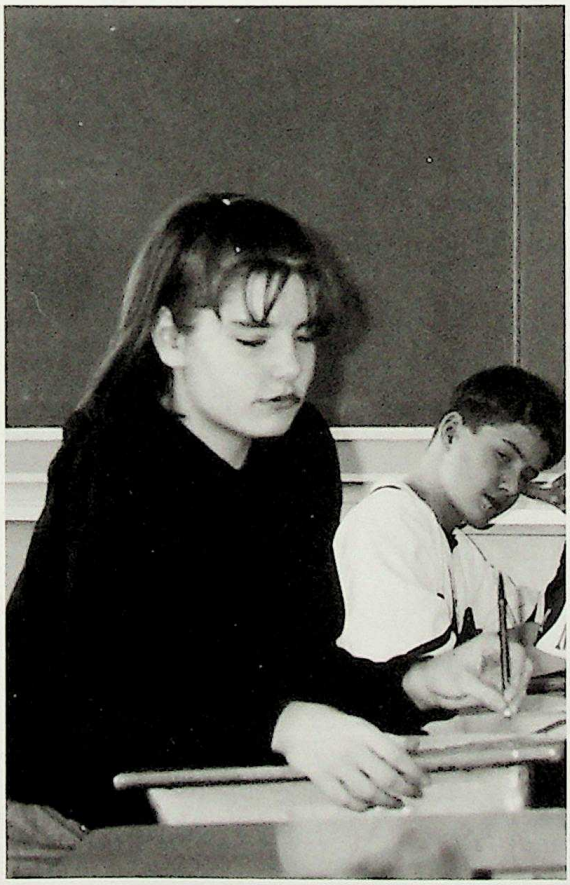


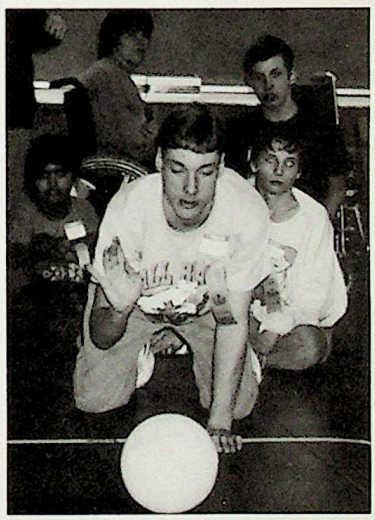
Hey John! You're here again? The hall seems to be a favorite place for John Douglas when he is supposed to be in Mrs. Ewasko's social studies class.

Listen to those tunes! Jasmine Moman taps her feet in beat with the song, as she finishes her homework in Mr. Whelan's class.



Wake up, sleepy head! Scott Balon, who was on his way to hit the slopes on the school ski trip, stops to take a quick nap in a snow drift.





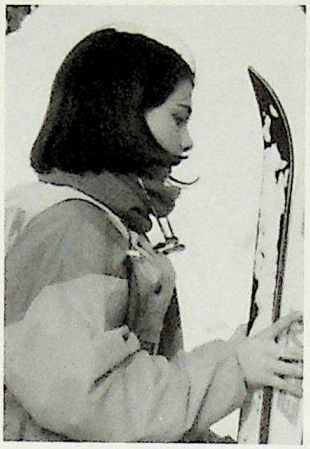
Watch out for those gutter balls! Larry Webber rolls the ball down the makeshift bowling lane at Hardisty's first annual Tri-School Olympiad.

What a boring class! While Melanie Doherty dreams of freedom as she sits in detention, Jerret Jonzon thinks about the answers to his homework. If only he could figure them out!

HARDISTY SCHOOL LIBRARY

Calvin you're crazy! Malinda Phair, Melissa Pringe, and Calvin Kirwer ham it up for the camera.

Snug as a bug in a rug! Lawrence Croft shows off his quillow at a band concert. Mrs. Bayly had Home Ec. students demonstrate how they work.



My bridge is the best! Jeff Clements proudly holds up the bridge he made in science for every one to see.

You mean we're going home already? Alana Gutknecht packs up her skis after a long day of skiing.

Hey, get back to class! Tianna Wolanski and Beth McKenzie take a break on a bench one lunch hour.

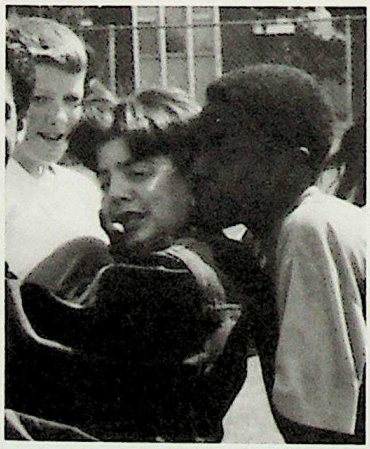
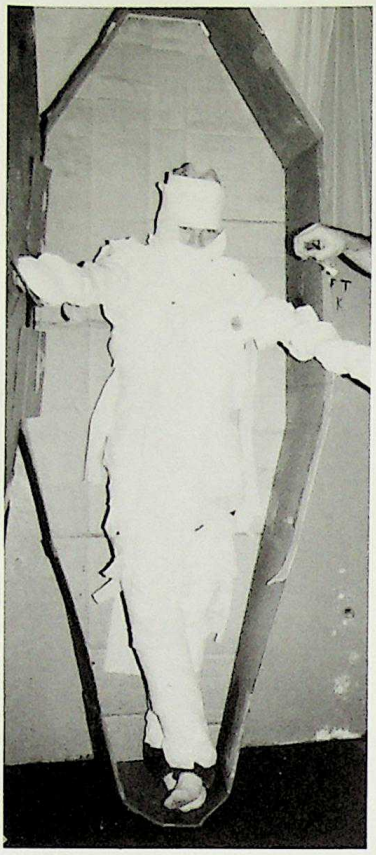
Aww, how sweet! Kirk Ricketts must really like Steven Clare as they fool around in Mr. Kindrat's Phys. Ed. class.

Nice smile Jamie! Jamie Beilman, Chad Johnston, Liz Ewing, and Dan Hildebrandt study hard in social studies with their favorite teacher Ms. Woodbury.

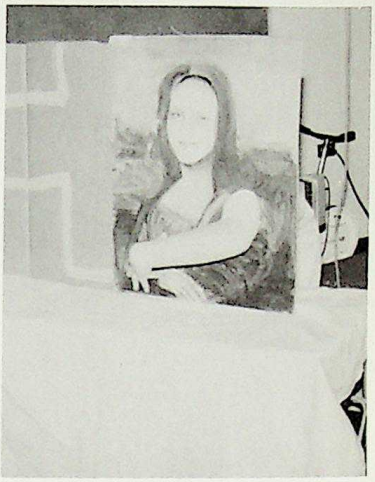




I want my mummy! Ready to frighten passers-by at the haunted house, the unidentified Egyptian mummy, takes a stroll out of his tomb.

Meow! Susan Gallimore and Sasha Leibel show off their cat family. Every homeroom competes to carve the best pumpkin in the Jack-o-Lantern contest.

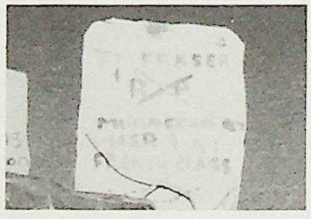
What a mysterious smile. The Mona Lisa painted by Leonardo da Vinci has come to Hardisty. Some clever students with the help of Mrs. Woodbury, designed this life-like copy complete with a live human arm and head.



Peace Man! For Halloween, Sarah Birmingham and Melissa Pringle flashed back to the sixties. These two hippie clad girls were a hit in their authentic costumes.

A great looking crew. Kelly Robinsen, Craig Mah, Karle Grainger, Trevor Graf and Craig Pawliuk show great enthusiasm in the annual Halloween dress-up contest.

Don't mess with me! Gangster Jamie Beilman calls one of his hitmen to get his L.A. teacher for giving him a failing mark.



Oh-Oh! Looks like Jamie's hit man got to Mrs. Fraser. The haunted house was a great success. Thanks to Mr. Woodbury for all his help!

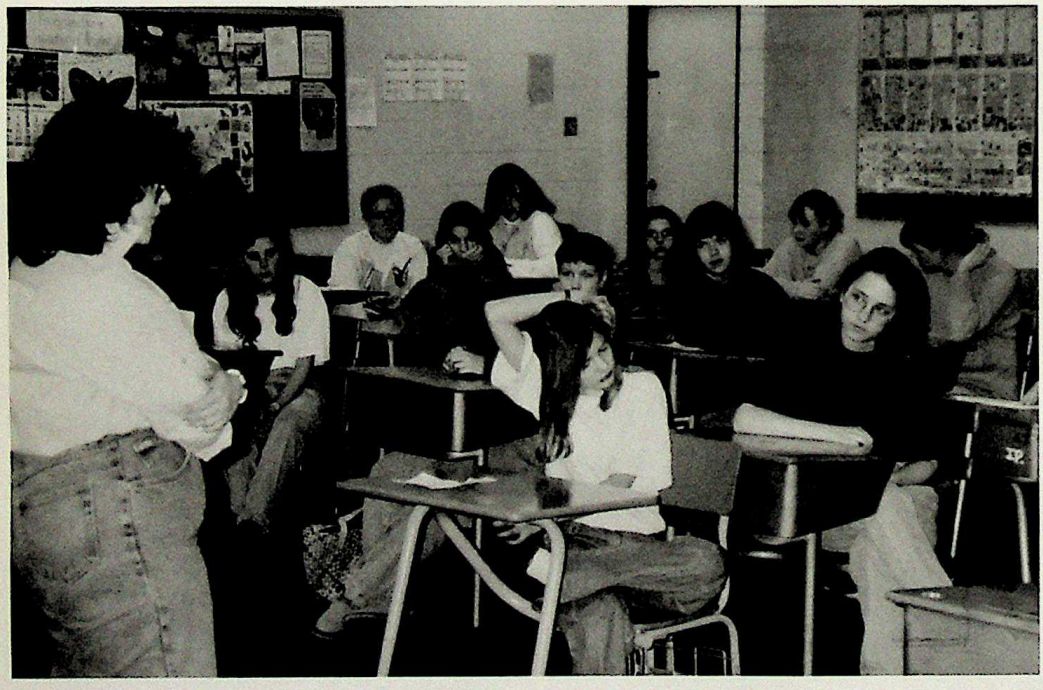
Congratulations on your efforts! The February students of the month were the first to receive the little silver hawk pins.

Getting Down to Business

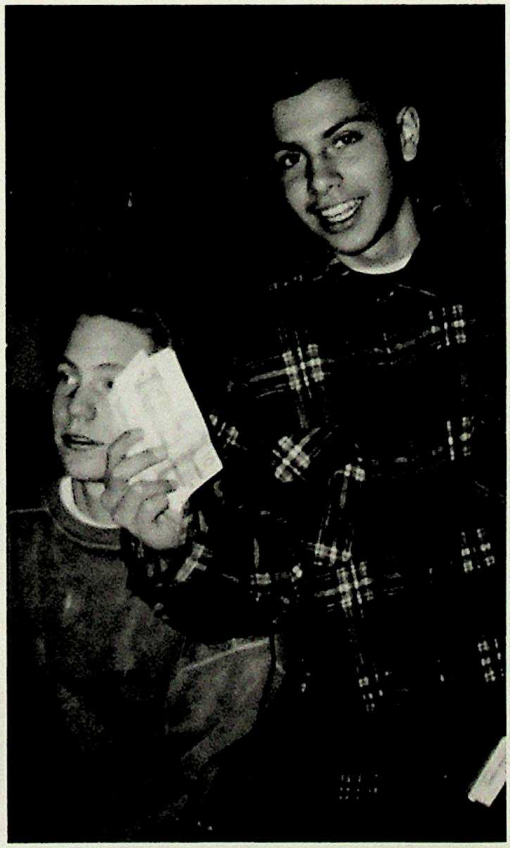
Hard Working Students

Angela Scott has the highest honors in grade seven.

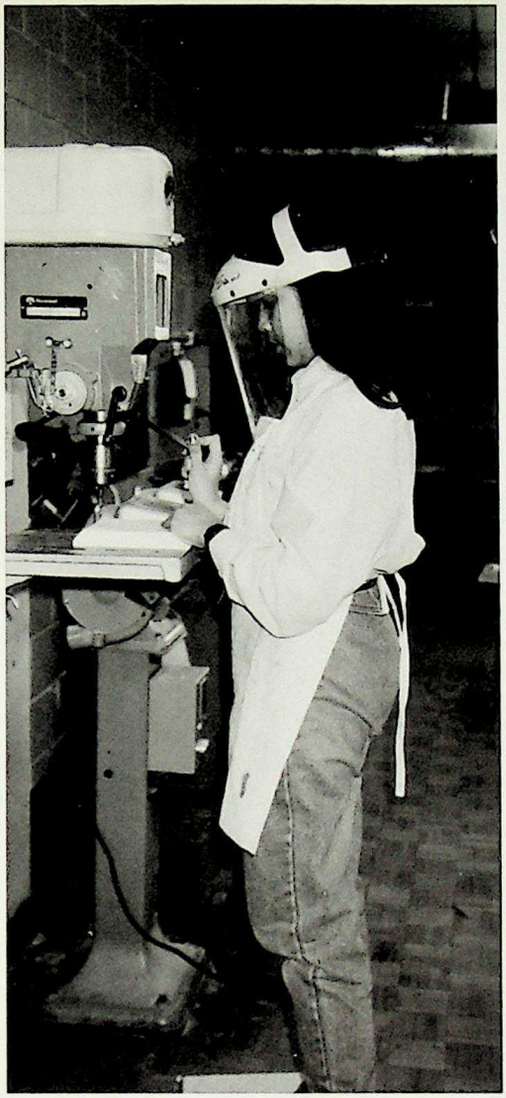
Jesse Pergentile has the highest honors in grade eight.



I wannabe a hairdresser when I grow up! Loretta Currie brushes her hair back while she listens to a speaker at career days.

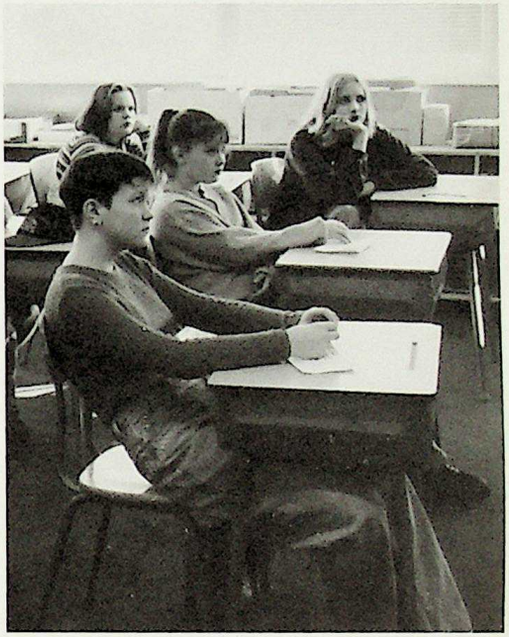


"C'mon, fifty bucks!" Marlon Monroy tries to bribe Mrs. Ewasko for a higher mark, while Jordan Willey just sits there lost in thought.



Careful, watch your fingers! Trupti Patel cleans a drill, while Mr. Nychka keeps a watchful eye. The I.A. students made a variety of projects, from locker shelves to little board games.

When will this be over? Celeste Drewin, Suzanne Mudry, Shelley Witwicki and Jen Curtin may all look like they are listening attentively to the career day speaker, but really their minds are elsewhere.



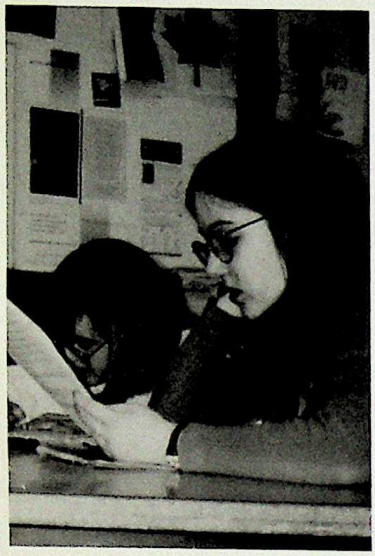
Get that camera out of here! Billy Ainsworth and Stacey Short take time out from their I.A. class to smile willingly at the camera, but gee, looks like someone is camera shy!

"You got the wrong guy! It's him you want!" The stress from his art class was too much for Michael Newton to handle, as he is about to take out his anger on Trevor Hayman. Classmates Sarah and Leah just ignore his insanity.

Students helping each other! Ms. MacBeth organized the paired reading program where students read aloud to each other over the lunch hour.

Watch your fingers! Evan Cheung uses the vise in I.A. to complete his CO2 car.

I'll never remember all of this! Sarah Kolesar studies for Mrs. Ewasko's social studies test as Sarah McNicoll is hard at work finishing her own assignment.



Please may I go now! Tanya Nielsen pleads for her freedom. Students sometimes work in the office, but would rather be in class with their friends.

Nice skirt! Janelle McWilliams models a snazzy skirt on Mrs. Woodbury's cultural day. Every student brought in different foods and items from different cultures.

What a great bunch! January students of the month are proud to be recognised for their efforts. Each month students are chosen by teachers for outstanding work.

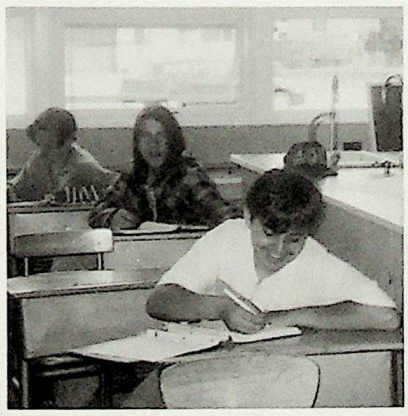
A-At Work

Learning Can Be Fun!



See, I'm working! Flavius Fratila smiles as he gets caught working in class.

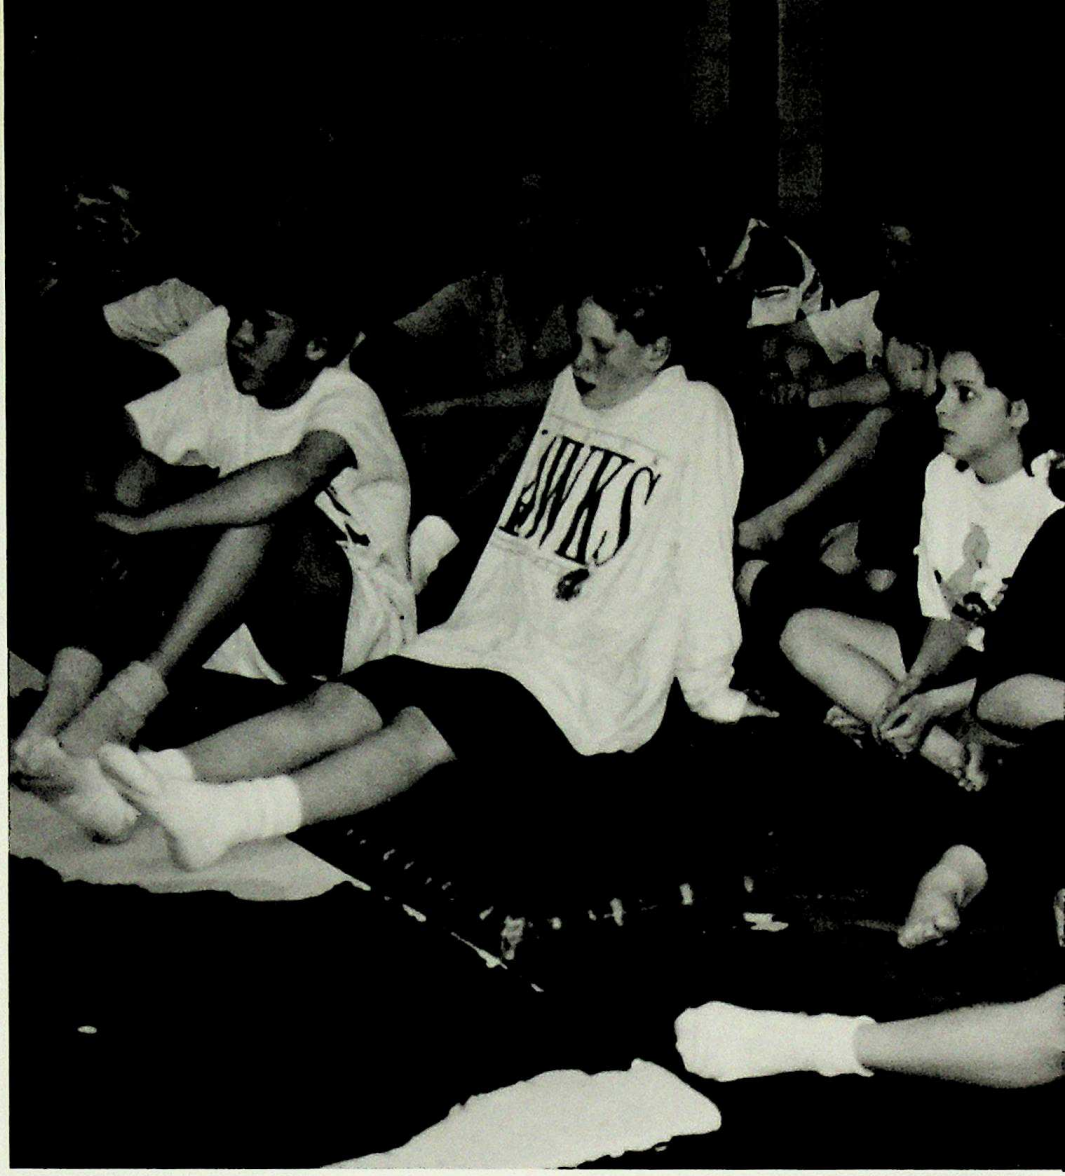
"Sounds good!" An enraptured group sits in the wrestling room getting a few last minute instructions from their coach, Mr. Kindrat and John Kai, assistant coach from McNally.

Athletes in Training

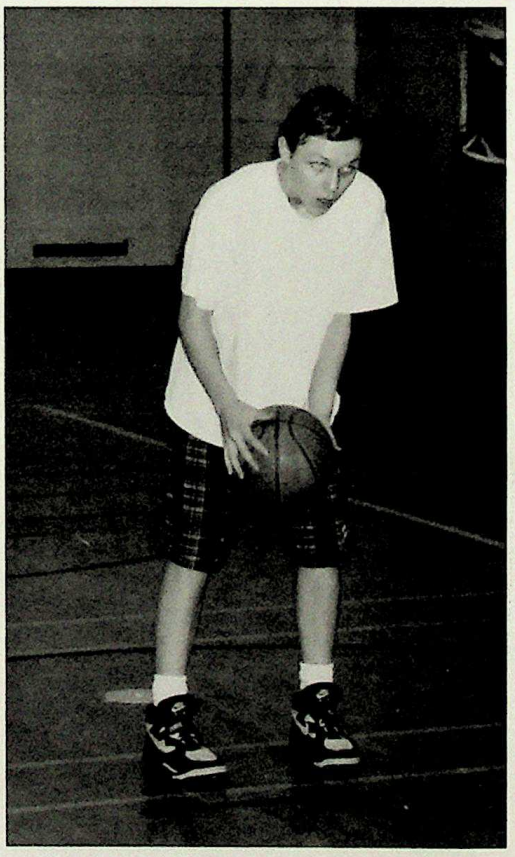
Quotable Quotes:

"Teaching and coaching definitely keeps you young at heart!"

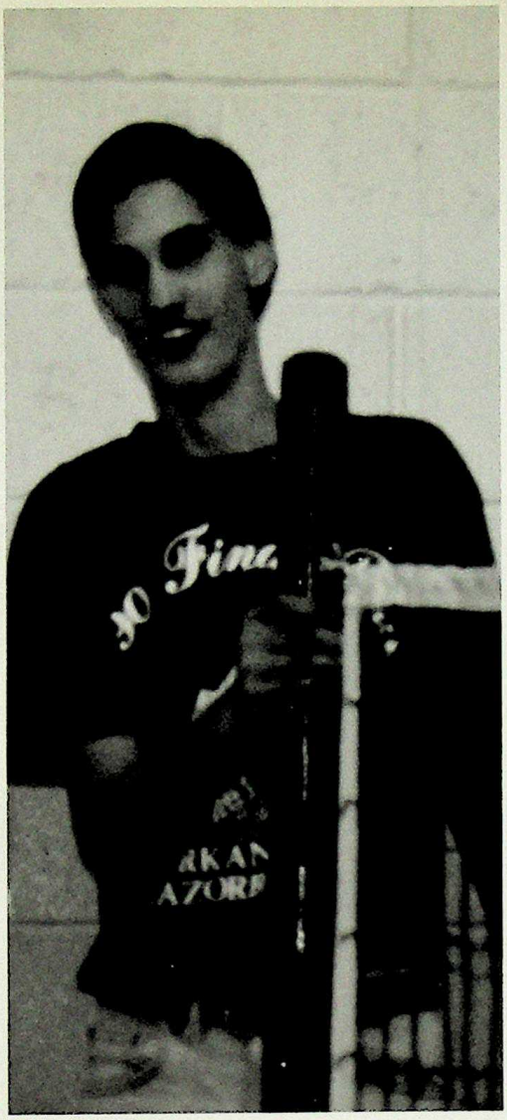
"Of course not, why would you change for P.E.?" "Another blonde moment, Mrs. N.?"



"Let's show them what we can do!" Monica Richardson, the senior girls volleyball team captain, gives the girls a quick pep talk. The girls volleyball team did especially well this year winning the silver medal at zones.

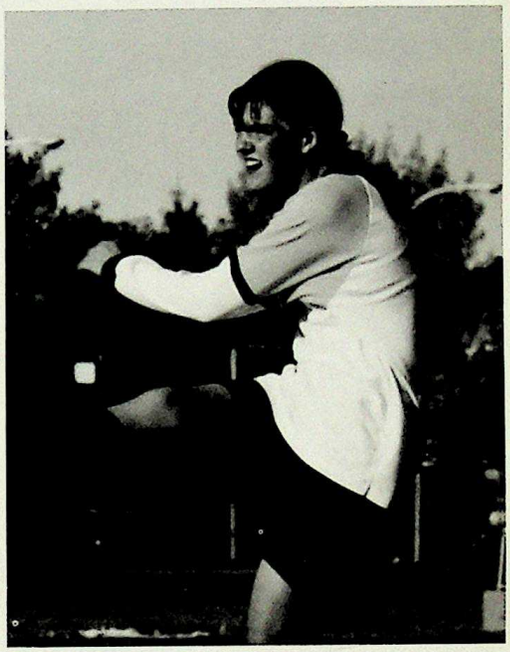


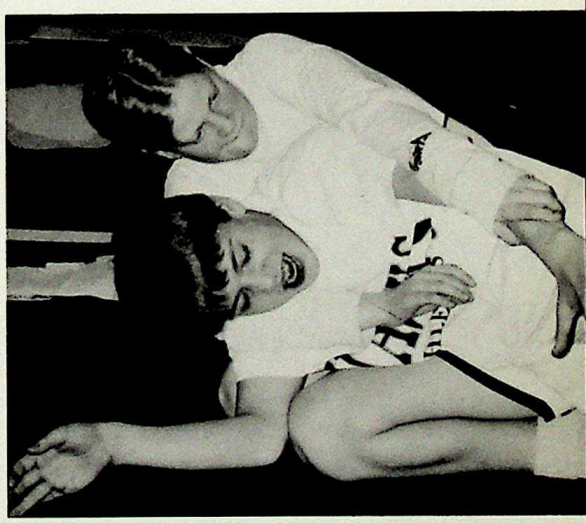
"Can I go yet?" Darren Cardinal sets up for a foul shot during a basketball game against Donnan. The boys basketball team also did well. They won second at city finals in the B division.



"Out of bounds! Point for Hardisty!" David Harris was given little notice that he was needed to ref the volleyball game since the scheduled ref did not show. What a great guy that David is!

She shoots, she scores!! Noele Arial takes a mighty kick at a girls soccer game, pretending that the ball is something she doesn't like. Good strategy!





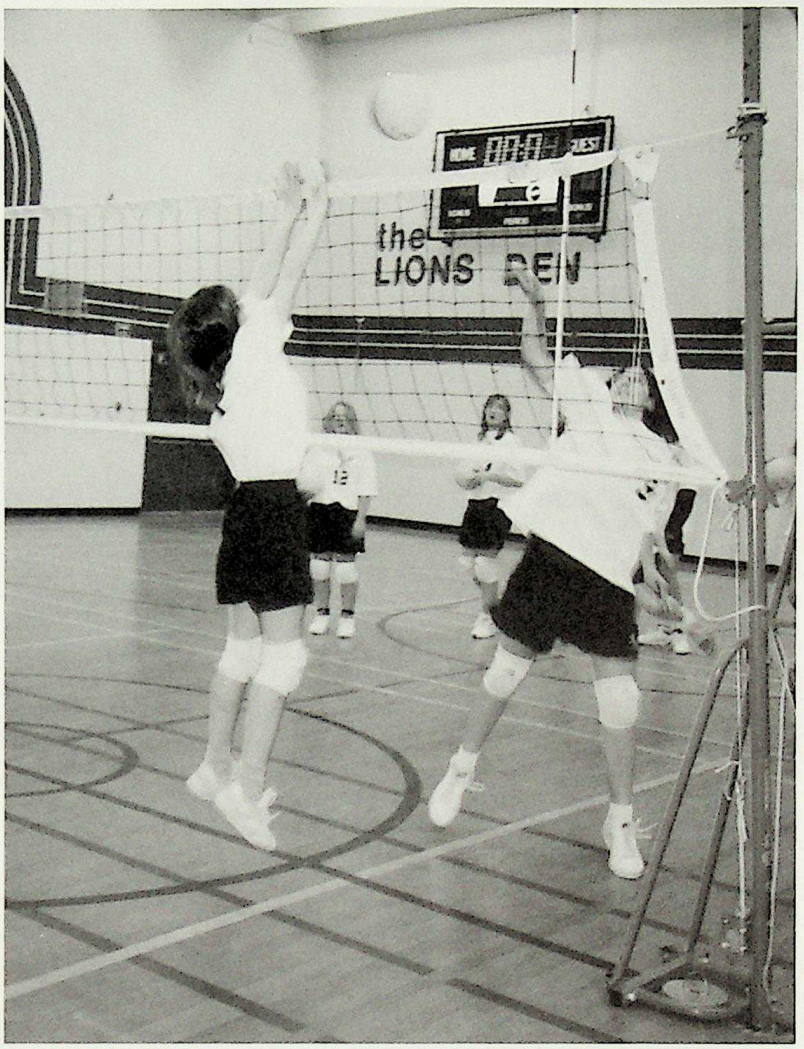
Could it be? Yes, the next WWF champ right here at Hardisty! Graham Horne tries out a new wrestling hold on his partner, Adam Ritchie. Good thing Graham is on our side!

"I'm open over here!" Morgan Davies yells to her team mate, Janice James, to pass her the ball during one of the soccer games played this season. The job of coaching was shared by Mrs. Fraser and Ms. MacBeth.

Hardisty Hawks

Students show school spirit by participating and getting involved!

Great spike! Brianne Carter shows off her spiking skills as Julia Healy goes up for the block. The girls volleyball team made it to quarter city finals where they were beat by Londonerry Jr. High School.



"Was that a point for Hardisty?" Two confused girls, Trish Young and Jennafer Jones, sit behind the score keeping table. After a quick confirmation with the ref. Hardisty receives the point.

"Alright! Good job girls!" Mrs. Fraser smiles enthusiastically after a game when the girls soccer team is victorious. What a great feeling it is to win, right Mrs. Fraser?

Quotable Quotes:

Paris Trip: Remember metro at midnight, Tigger, Sarah's luggage, cute guides/guys

Whew! It's so hot! Experimenting with props, April Stanley-Smith, Amanda Cziborr, Erin Lund and Nadia Blackmore have a ball posing for their picture in Ms. MacBeth's grade eight drama class.

Oh la la, c'est tres grande! Of the many sights on the Paris trip, the Eiffel tower was by far the most famous. The Paris group visited the tower on their last day and boy was it windy! That's Mrs. Ewasko to the left.

Why are you sitting in my doorway? Mrs. Fraser was just going out to check the halls when she discovered a student had stopped in front of her door to rest for a bit. It must have been a pretty tiring ski trip.

Remembering Friends

The 1993-1994 Hardisty School Year

Good-Bye and Good Luck

As Jennifer Breakenridge, Amy Krowko, Terra Paradis and Tianna Wolanski share a laugh and enjoy looking at their anthology book, the yearbook staff wishes you fond memories and much success in the years ahead. As you reminisce about your 93-94 Hardisty Junior High school year, we hope this yearbook helps you to remember fun times and friends.

Many thanks to Elizabeth Pierce and Trupti Patel who gave many lunch hours to work on the yearbook, labelling pictures and generally doing all the things that needed doing. Also thanks to Pamela Pailamilla, Kristel Rondeau and Eve Brace for their contribution in writing captions and typing them up on the computer. To Brianne Carter and Tamsin Shute, thanks for your hard work in choosing layouts, writing and typing captions, and for working so hard during the last few days of school to see the book was completed. You can all be proud of a job well done!

Thanks
